

Home | Art in America

TIM BAVINGTON

By Lyra Kilston September 11, 2010 12:22pm

What is the deal with painters and stripes? Pondering this art historical quandary, I was pleased to find myself riveted by the work in English-born, Las Vegas-based Tim Bavington's knockout show (all works 2009 or 2010), his fifth solo at Mark Moore.

Made of synthetic polymer applied to canvas with an aerosol dispenser, these vividly colorful paintings appear pristine and sharp from a distance but are maddeningly blurred up close. Bright and hazy, the stripes resemble neon signs in fog, and don't evoke other paintings so much as Dan Flavin's glowing fluorescent tubes. Inspired by pop music—hence the titles of these paintings—Bavington seeks to translate aural experiences, such as specific instrumental solos, into visual ones. The large Can't Take It With You strikes an optical xylophone of hot pinks and swimming-pool blues, with a steady rhythm of greens and reds humming in its center. A sense of music-fueled color continues in Witchcraft, where diagonal stripes in a mild, country club palette of pale pink, army green and teal are framed by calm swathes of peach. In Long May You Run, two fuzzy combs meet cleanly in the middle of the canvas, forming a lifeline of clarity amid out-of-focus fields. Bold as Love branches off in a different direction, reflecting the thick, mellow atmosphere of the Jimi Hendrix song it borrows its name from. Suggesting a saturated sunset of deep blues, lavenders and yellows, it is distorted like a screen saver on the fritz, with stripes surfacing and dissolving into what look like ripples of light seen through water. These paintings make you work: it was impossible not to squint and blink, trying to pull the patterns into focus.

A second series of paintings left stripes and music behind to focus on album covers. Also sprayed on canvas, these images are blurred enough to resemble iconic abstract paintings. For example, the background of The Clash's Give 'Em Enough Rope album cover sports sharp bands of red, blue and yellow; in Bavington's hands they become blurred blocks of color against a buzzing purple ground, à la Rothko. Bavington's version of New Order's Blue Monday, which features concentric circles, nods toward Kenneth Noland, though it is hardly different from looking at the album cover through a very unfocused camera lens. If the journey from cover art to Color Field or to Ab-Ex painting felt a bit hokey, Bavington's synesthetic translation of melody into visual tone is a shining update of a century-old modernist tradition.

Photo: Tim Bavington: Long May You Run, 2010, synthetic polymer on canvas, 64 inches square; at Mark Moore.

Read More About:

- lyra-kilston | mark-moore | tim-bavington

More From Art in America

Hard Truths: Fight at the Museum
How have protests over inequality and racial injustice affected art organizations?
BY HOWIE CHEN

Photographer Nicolas Krief Records the Labor Behind the Glamour of Museum Displays in Paris
At the Musée d'Orsay, the Grand Palais, and other museums, the photographer demystifies the illusion that artworks are inviolable totems.
BY SARAH MOROZ

Basquiat's Soundtrack
What was the influence of Jazz, Punk, and Hip-Hop on Basquiat's work?
BY DAMON KRUKOWSKI

Playing through the Slow Apocalypse
The Outcast Lovers by Far Few Giants and Marginal Act's Vasilis are two recent indie games about ethical complexity amid social collapse.
BY MICHAEL THOMSEN

What Happens to a University's Art Lending Program in a Pandemic?
Registrar Lisa DeLong talks about the MIT List Visual Arts Center's art loan program and how it handled the COVID-19 pandemic.
BY ART IN AMERICA

Newsire

- GoldDerby
2021 Oscar Predictions: Best Picture
4 hours ago
- TVLine
Line Items: Fear the Walking Dead Poster, OUAT Hits Disney+ and More
3 hours ago
- BGR
Watch SpaceX catch its nosecone falling with ease
3 hours ago
- Rolling Stone
Ben Gibbard of the Postal Service Dedicates Song to the Postal Service
2 hours ago
- SPY
The 70 Best Tech Gifts of 2020 for Everyone on Your Shopping List
4 hours ago

Art Media

- About Us
- Accessibility
- Advertise
- PMC Fashion & Luxury

Legal

- Terms of Use
- Privacy Policy
- California Privacy Rights
- AdChoices
- Do Not Sell My Personal Information
- AdChoices

Subscriber Support

- Subscribe to ARTnews Magazine
- Subscribe to AIA Magazine
- Purchase Back Issues
- Contact Us

Connect with Us

Get our latest stories in the feed of your favorite networks

Have a Tip?

We want to hear from you! Send us a tip using our anonymous form.

SEND US A TIP

Stay In The Know

Subscribe to our newsletters below

ARTnews
Art in America