Talley Dunn Gallery presents Tim Bavington: “Blow-Up” opening reception

Many events have been canceled or postponed due to coronavirus concerns. Please check with the organization before going to any event.

Talley Dunn Gallery will present an exhibition of recent work by British-born artist, Tim Bavington. Tim Bavington: “Blow-Up” is the artist’s inaugural exhibition with the gallery.

The exhibition features an installation of nine new abstract paintings that create an environment of visual intensity and pulsating color. With these recent paintings, Bavington continues the practice for which he has received acclaim wherein he transforms sheet music into highly saturated abstract paintings that focus upon the subtleties and associations of color. Using synthetic polymer paint, Bavington acts as a translator between the aural and the visual as he turns guitar solos, melodies and basslines into vertical bands of color.

While Bavington has developed a method that designates sound to color and composition, the paintings are not literal translations. Each painting remains open the artist’s intuition and decision making. Together these paintings play upon the nuances of one another with shifts between vibrant colors, the texture of individual canvases, the changing rhythms of different compositions, and the dynamic optical movement created as each painting is viewed from varying perspectives.

Following the opening reception, the exhibit will be on view through July 28.
