Sectior	ns 📃 🛛	News S	Sports	Entertainment	Life	Obituaries	E-Edition	Cars 3	Jobs Hon	nes Classifieds	s Scanner		Q	Log In	Weather	J
5		uit Garus,	15 011651	eu		as y PhysicianOne Urg	gent Care		See 5		ling justice.		the Year	ews opurtsmai		they
				DAILY	INE	WS

Explore music through the visual arts at the MFA

'Great news': Family reacts to run crash

leaves you hanging

drawing board

Film chronicles changes Me2

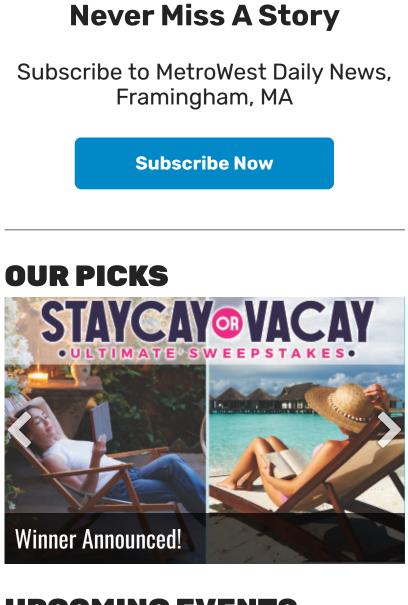

Orchestra makes through music

the original animated film on the

4 OPINION/#ConfabNE:Are the problems at the post office going to change how you vote? Here's what... Sep 4 at 2:44 PM

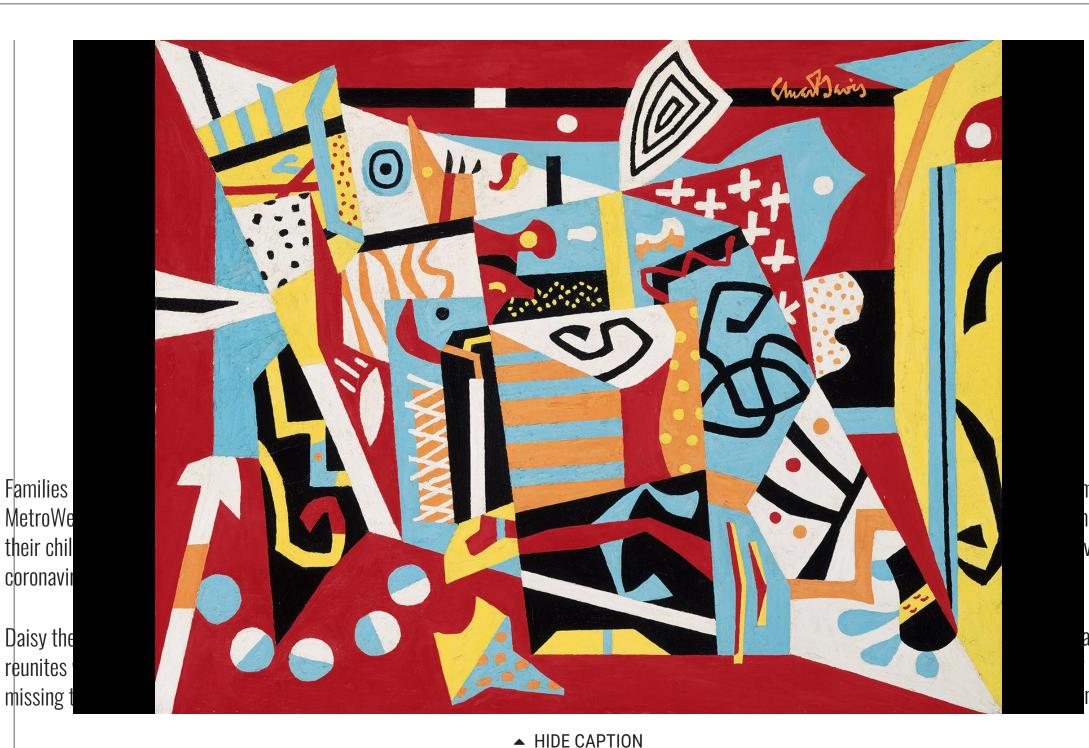

Sep 3 at 12:33 PM

• • •

UPCOMING EVENTS

What's U_ "Hot Stillscape for Six Colors - 7th Avenue Style," 1940, oil on canvas, by Stuart Davis - Courtesy Museum of Fine Arts, Boston warm up your living room concerns son-in-law

By Chris Bergeron/DAILY NEWS STAFF What's Up Doc? What you should AM know about mitral regurgitation

Why it's a new era for Bruce Springsteen and this time it's personal

An intriguing exhibit, "Seeing Songs" at the Museum of Fine Arts, raises provocative questions by exploring how visual artists over the last century have portrayed music's sound and power.

Movie Review: 'Mulan' remake leaves the original animated film on the drawing board EMP #ICCares #EmPowerAtIC

nighty experience: Gillette hosting drive-thru Jurassic vent

Families o

MetroWes

their child

coronaviru

Daisy the reunites w

missing tv

What's Up

concerns

What's Up

know abou

DAILY NE

All Scholastics

ars ago, the Pilgrims set sail England. Now, we are ng their legacy

N: What does back to school look like for your student? Are you comfortable with the plan? Join the... #ConfabNE

OPINION/#ConfabNE:Are the Change how you vote? Here's what...

Experience Happenings Through Our Photo

Gallery

If you could hear with your eyes, what does Shostakovich's "Symphony for Chamber Music" look like?

Can a photograph capture the aching heartbreak of Janis Joplin singing "cry, cry baby"?

Who needs sound when a naked hairy man plays air guitar in a video?

An intriguing exhibit, "Seeing Songs" at the Museum of Fine Arts, raises these and other provocative questions by exploring how visual artists over the

Whether you can barely carry a tune should pluck a musical chord in mos

Showcasing 60 paintings, photos, pr

artists sought to transform music's e Register to vote Some painters like Wassily Kandins abstractions. For photographers Herb Ritts and Richard Avedon, rock stars like Tina Turner and Mick Jagger were Dionysian muses for the Age of Aquarius.

As traditional boundaries between performers and their audience blurred, videographers such as Candice Breitz documented fans inhabiting Madonna's persona like squatters with no better place to go.

Organized by Assistant Curator of Contemporary Art William Stover, "Seeing Songs" is part of the Contemporary Outlook series and runs through Feb. 21 in the first floor Foster Gallery.

Stover said he created the exhibit to examine how classical and popular music has inspired visual artists using different mediums. But, he said, the exhibit also explores related themes such as "music as performance" and the relationship between musicians and celebrity in a fame-obsessed age.

In some ways the exhibit resembles a rock concert with a couple of opening acts, a headliner progressing from old favorites to new hits and ending, climactically, with the star at center stage basking in audience adulation.

While not diminishing their importance as an opening act, a gallery titled "Music: Persona and Performance" plays the same role as the warm-up acts, reminding viewers of the elevation of celebrity artists to an almost shamanistic role in society.

Shot largely by Ritts with several striking photos by Herb Greene and Elsa Dorfman, it offers a pantheon of rock gods and goddesses, including Bruce Springsteen, Prince and Aretha Franklin, as recognizable to fans today as Pan and Bacchus in ancient Greece.

Taking center stage, the exhibit's aesthetic core, a gallery titled "Music: Abstract and Concrete," offers sophisticated experiments by 20th century painters - like Kandinsky, Helen Torr and Arthur Garfield Dove - to visually depict music's fluid structure and emotional power.

Coming at a time when painters were challenging stylistic conventions, their efforts represented ambitious attempts to capture the complex structures of classical music through unorthodox forms and colors.

For many visitors, Breitz's wall-sized video installation, "Queen (A Portrait of Madonna)," delivers the bold, seductive power of the Material Girl herself.

Shot in Milan, Italy, in 2005, it features a grid of 30 screens of 15 male and female fans each singing a capella in English all 17 cuts of Madonna's "Immaculate Collection" album with heartfelt abandon.

With all their voguing and gesticulating, these uninhibited Madonna poseurs might appear very cool or downright spooky depending on a viewer's age.

Are they experiencing ecstasy or self-immolation? Or is that just the timid caveat of someone who grew up listening to Pat Boone and The Kingston Trio?

Breitz's 73-minute "Queen" serves to introduce several other shorter videos likely to resonate with music lovers who grew up watching performers' on-screen antics in the Age of

MTV. Rather than organize the exhibit chronologically, Stover said the exhibit is "set up to be open and fluid like music itself." "There's no one way or order to see it in. It's entirely up to the individual," he said.

Stover has chosen videos that explore both sides of the question whether music fans too easily surrender their personality to music they love.

In Gillian Wearing's 21-minute video, "Slight Reprise," several young men, including a disturbingly hirsute naked one, energetically play air guitar in their bedrooms.

Yet in Dutch-born Rineke Dijkstra's four-minute video, an attractive but self-conscious young girl lip syncs a Backstreet Boys song with visible anxiety. Is she uncomfortable with the English language or the mildly suggestive lyrics? While Dijkstra doesn't say, visitors might sense an innocent preteen reluctant to venture into the complexities of adolescence.

Stover has chosen several videos that document the power of music, when married to high technology, to intrude on virtually every aspect of what was once our private lives.

"We travel through life with our own soundtrack. Sometimes others hear it; sometimes it's ours alone," he observed in wall text opening the exhibit. "Does music hold such a power we cannot leave it behind? Or is it a tool we use to isolate and disconnect ourselves from the world?"

"Seeing Songs" doesn't take sides.

But for MP3-wearing visitors watching 30 Madonna wannabes warble "Rescue Me," the message is clear: Pump up the volume.

THE ESSENTIALS:

talk.

The Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, is open seven days a week.

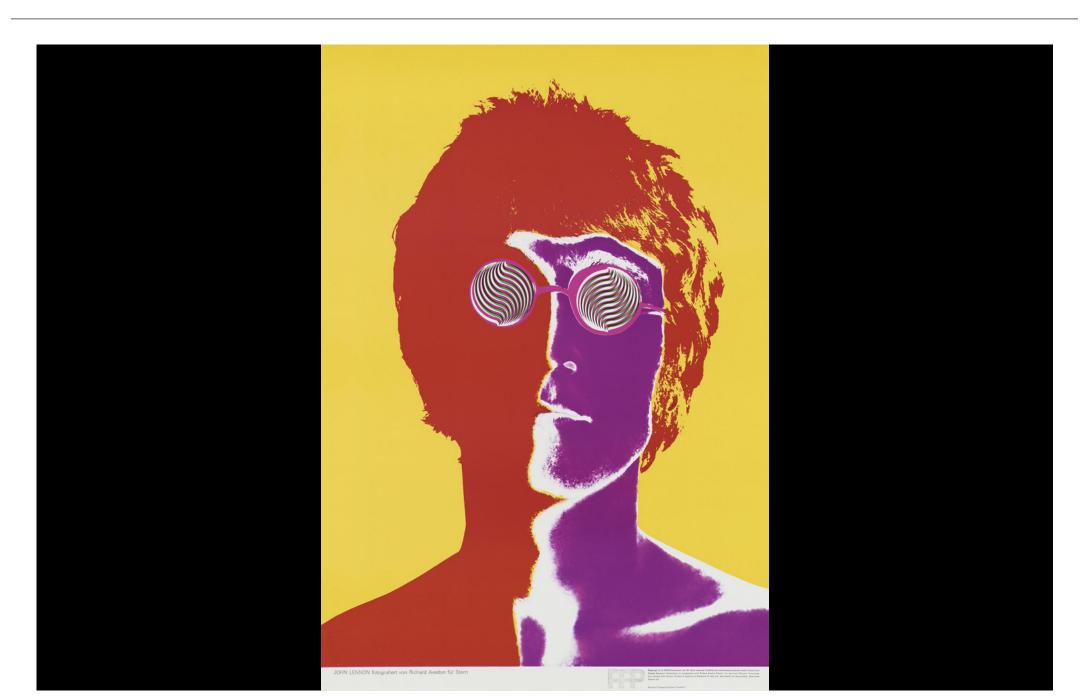

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Saturday through Tuesday and 10 a.m. to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

General admission (which includes two visits in a 10-day period) is $17 for adults; and $15 for seniors and students 18 and older. Admission for students who are University Members is free as is admission for children under 17 during non-school hours.

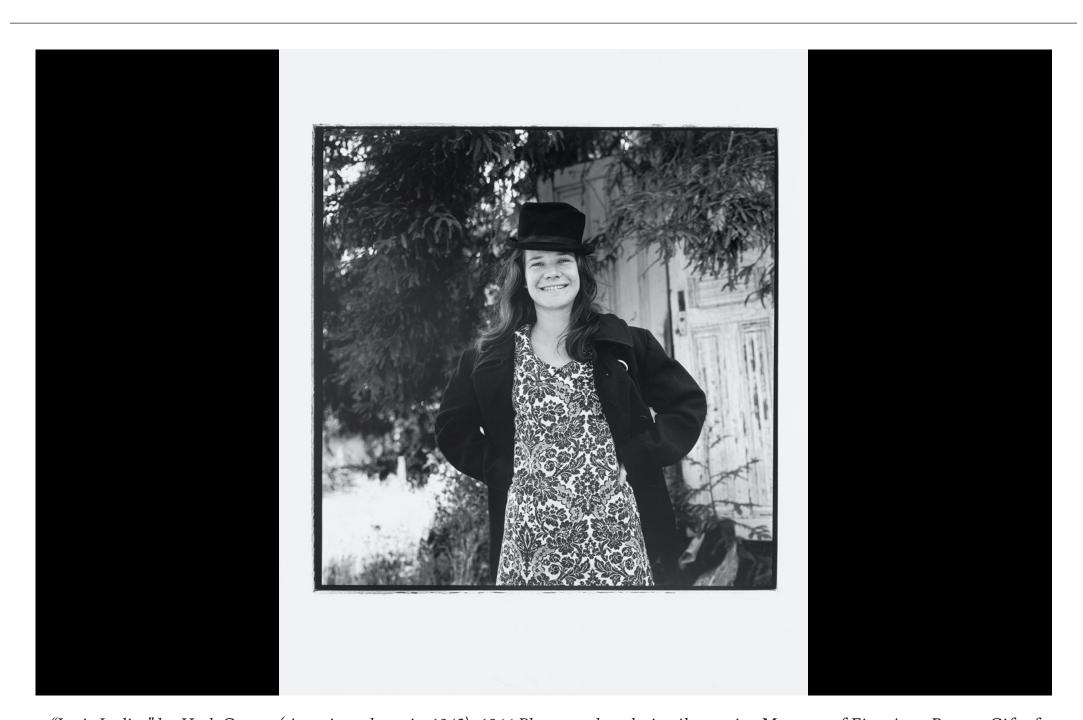

The MFA is offering several events in conjunction with this exhibit:

- Wednesday, Aug. 19, 6 to 7 p.m.: Stover will deliver a gallery
- Sunday, Sept. 20, 2 to 3 p.m.: Benjamin Weiss, manager of adult learning resources, will lead a gallery talk.
- Saturday, Sept. 26, 12 to 1 p.m.: Local artist Joe Wardell will lead a gallery talk.

For information, call 617-267-9300 or visit www.mfa.org.

"John Lennon," by Richard Avedon (American, 1923-2004), 1967 Offset lithographic poster Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Lee M. Friedman Fund Photograph Richard Avedon. Courtesy The Richard Avedon Foundation. Copyright 1975, The Richard Avedon Foundation.

"Janis Joplin," by Herb Greene (American, born in 1942), 1966 Photograph, gelatin silver print Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Gift of Arlette and Gus Kayafas and The Living New England Artists Purchase Fund, created by The Stephen and Sybil Stone Foundation

Cancelled TV Shows: Effective Immediately

By www.thedelite.com TV Cancellations: The Full List For 2020

READ MORE

CCPA Notice

Tab291a Feed

If You Like to Play, this Strategy Game is a Must-Have. No Install. Forge Of Empires | Sponsored

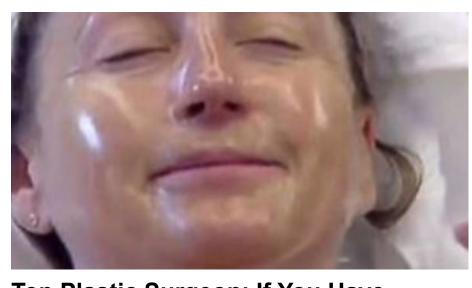

If Your Dog Eats Grass (Do This Every Day)

Ultimate Pet Nutrition Nutra Thrive Supplement | Sponsored

New Senior Living Near Newport Beach Are A Dream Come True! Senior Living | Sponsored

These Cars Are So Loaded It's Hard to Believe They're So Cheap Cars | Search Ads | Sponsored

Top Plastic Surgeon: If You Have Wrinkles, Do This Before Bed Del Mar Laboratories CeraLift Supplement | Sponsored

Search For Best New Crossover SUVs. They Might Be Surprisingly Affordable! Yahoo! Search | Sponsored

Skip the Doctor and Upgrade to the World's Smartest CPAP The Easy Blog by Breatheeasy.com | Sponsored

Hudson woman charged in Rte. 9 crash in Southborough Metro West Daily News

(MS) IENSEN DAVID P 8/22/2020 Framingham man charged with rape at hospital Metro West Daily News

Search For Senior Assisted Living Newport Beach. They Are A Dream Come True!

Yahoo! Search | Sponsored

Do You Have Royal Blood? Your Last Name May Tell You. Ancestry | Sponsored

New Senior Apartments in Newport Beach Are A Dream Come True

Red alert at Keefe Tech: Voke school switches to remote start Metro West Daily News

MetroWest teachers concerned laws don't keep them safe in the classroom Metro West Daily News

Newport Beach: Why Are People Snapping Up This $89 AC Unit?

Never miss a story

Choose the plan that's right for you. Digital access or digital and print delivery.

Subscribe Now

Sign up for daily e-mails

X CLOSE

Enter Email Address Reviewed Problem Sol → ed

COMMUNITIES Support Local Businesses Work for Us Milford Daily News Ads Find your Wicked Local town Ashland Framingham Shrewsbury Holliston Hopkinton Hudson Marlborough

Westborough

Pay Your Ad Bill

Blaux Portable AC | Sponsored

MORE COMMUNITIES Natick Northborough Southborough Sudbury Wayland Weston Wicked Local

My Profile Subscribe Mobile-Friendly Account Management E-Edition

Submit Your News Find Us on Facebook Follow us on Twitter Advertise With Us Contact us See us on Instagram Find us on Tumblr Newsletter Sign-up

SITE SERVICES

MARKET PLACE Classifieds Find Framingham Jobs Real Estate

© Gannett Co., Inc. 2020. All rights reserved.

Original content available for non-commercial use under a Creative Commons license, except where noted. t., Framingham MA 01701 ~ Cookies Settings ~ Cookie Policy ~ Do Not Sell My Personal Information ~ Privacy Policy ~ Terms Of Service ~ Your California Privacy Rights / Privacy Policy

Gannett | USA TODAY NETWORK